IPSWICH 1987

In Memory of Mary Walle

Happiness is the dream that we all desire to achieve. Unfortunately, a dream was lost this year; a loss that made us all reflect on what is truly important in our lives. We will miss her dearly, but hopefully a greater appreciation for what we have and what we hope to achieve has been attained. Although we can never have her back, Mary's smile will always remain in the hearts of those who knew and loved her.

1 9 8 7

This yearbook is our deep expression of thanks to all the parents of the Class of 1987. With much research, determination, talent, and effort, this class history has been compiled and presented. However, our motivation and enthusiasm in achieving our goals, both past and present, has stemmed from the supreme encouragement of our families. A man's worth is judged by those who surround him, and indeed our parents have helped to guide us since the day we could pronounce the word "success". It is to you, our mothers and fathers, that the Class of 1987 humbly dedicate this book of love.

This book is a symbol of an end which is also a beginning.

Now, as our high school years come to a close, we will all take different directions toward the future.

Although we may all be separated, we will never forget the times we've had together. During the past four years, while growing individually, we've also become a close knit group.

As each of us steps forward into the future, wherever it may be, we will carry with us the memories of I.H.S.

The best of luck to everyone.

SENIORS

When did we finally become seniors? When did we achieve this lofty status of high school responsibility? For all of us it came at different times. For some it happened when we passed our junior year, for others perhaps it came later. Maybe an event or a changing of season brought forth the realization that this would be our last year in high school. Every little thing was monumental because it would be the last time. It would be the last first day of school, the last school dance, the last time we could hear those motivating student announcements, the last gym class (well, not everything has to be sad), the last time pumpkins would be rolled down various hills, the last Christmas, the last high school party (well maybe not the LAST high school party), the last whatever meant a lot to you. But when all the lasts finally hit, a senior still has not been made. A senior finally becomes a senior when he realizes that the lasts only signify the beginning of the firsts. The first time going to college, first time getting a job to support yourself, first time to be legally able to go into Agawam Video and get something really disgusting, a first time to deal with life outside the structured sanction of high school.

Responsibility looms over us like an impatient time bomb. But let's put it on hold for a while. It's time to sit down and look back on four years, that were not always easy, but not exactly a drag. Let's relax a little bit; hey, we really did accomplish something. Something that gives every one of us a right to be proud. We will always treasure our lasts and strive for our firsts because we finally became seniors. Good luck '87.

The Company has given me a lot of my best memories: Dinty Moore, "Enough already", those adorable short swords, cranberry juice, Charles McCarthy's over-active hands (what a trip), the interviews, and the three bong's. But most of all, I'll never forget that "matt, you're an @#%*&@#!" and "Techies Live!".

The worst event of my three years at IHS was my short vacation the beginning of sophomore year; but, the fact that I was back with my friends made that trivial matter unimportant. I would do no justice in trying to explain the funniest or the wildest time because most of it would be censored. Those of you who were with me know who you are . . . thanks a bunch.

Kristen B. Foote

On a boring, cloudy day in the midst of the hectic pace of car parking (four cars), a dart game occured. I had effectively destroyed Kelly in both regular and baseball darts. After my awesome display, I carelessly tossed a little, itty-bitty, eenie-weenie, dart in the general direction of the dart board that was carefully perched on the windshield of my car. SMASH!! In front of two girls, a lifeguard, and my faithful parking assistant my window was destroyed. Some people may call the Blue MaGoo and my driving cursed . . . but, I call it really, wicked, mega cursed. Good thing Freshmen can't have cars. Community #1.

Thanks Mrs. Borgatti for the eggs, bagels, nuts, orange juice, toast, candy (even though it was from Halloween), cheese, ham, milk, grape juice, coffee, and the Rice Krispies. The time me, Cindy, Jodrie and Chris Alexopoulos were sitting in suspension because I stole a salt shaker from the Sald Bowl during lunch, not a class. A cop followed us back to the school where we were welcomed by Charlie on the front steps with his arms crossed. All he said was, "Ladies, my office." Next day in suspension we ordered a pizza and had Walt's Cab deliver it. But, it was late so we had to flag the cab through the window and when we finally got it, MacKenzie was substituting for a class across the hall. Alex did a 3-point turn and dropped the pizza. Charlie picked it up and gave us detention. I think we were the first people to ever get detention during suspension.

Stephanie Bies

It started off like any other day. We were on our way to school but, got side-tracked on the way there. We decided to stop off at Donald's house. He was home and had to do some things so we decided to take the trip with him. I just wanted to know . . . Chris, Alex-did you really see those Chinamen dance? Hey, Steph- was that really Cujo? Well the day went on: "Hey, Guys! Watch out, its following us" and "Good grief, is this bridge long!" By the way Alex, those are real people. Steph was a bit on edge that day but, I'm glad she got a grip on it. And, no-I'm not Jaba the Hut. Steph, where did you get that gum? It sure is, "damn good gum" though and the fish weren't bad either. Proms are supposed to be something you'll never forget. Well, I can't even remember! But, all in all, it was fun while it lasted. I really did enjoy myself. Matt, you sure know how to pick them. I wish I could say more but, I wasn't there long enough. But, Shan, Alex and Bets had one heck of a vacation once school was back in session.

FACULTY

A Day At The Gravel Pit

The following is a satirical outlook on how things function around this place, it by no means is trying to insult, undermine, or cut down the working force of the high school, but . . . let's not be totally serious.

Scene 1, act 1:
Fred Flintstone (Mr. Fortado enters his office) - Willlmaaa!!! I'm home!!!

Wilma (any one of the various beautiful secretaries stationed at their assigned posts) - Yes, dear, I can see.

Fred F. - Listen, Wilma if I hear any more remarks like that I'll . . . . . .

(Enter Barney - Mr. Mackenzie) - Hey, hey, Freddie boy, we got trouble. The Bronto-burger workers (cafeteria workers - we sympathize, really we do) just left again because Bam-Bam and Pebbles (the entire school population) just started a brown sack rebellion, something about food that wasn't fit for Dino. The Apple B.C.'s just blew up on Mrs. Granite (Ms. Townsend), Mr. Slate (Mr. Thompson) is coming down for an inspection and the rockfessors are complaining about . . . . . ., well, I don't know, they are just complaining.

Fred F. - Easy Barney, don't get your tail feathers in an uproar. Freddy boy will handle this. I'll just call another popular faliocrulty meeting and straighten everything out.

Barney - Okay Fred, Uh, whatever you say.

Scene 2, act 1: (disgruntled workers meet in the rock-n-roll room, it's 2:30 by my sun dial)

Fred F. - Okay, quiet down. Now I know there are some problems, so I'll just shaddup and be all ears.

Ms. Dorock Fournier (representing our math dept.) - I need more slate, all my #3 granite is running out!

Mr. Roockso (representing our English dept.) - I need more copies of The Great Rocksby!

Mr. Rockendolan (representing our Music Dept.) - I need new tusks to replace the old ivories!

Mr. Laddrock (representing our Foreign Language Dept.) - What about my trip to Paris, the "city of candles?"

Coach Welchrock (representing Athletics) - I need more helmets, the boys are starting to feel pain!!

Rockin' Ron (representing Social Studies) - I need some history, class is getting boring.

Betty McNeill (I know, I know, she's gone, but the name is perfect) I need more brochures for all the slate colleges!

Mr. Quigrock (representing our Science Dept.) - What about my new rockulators!?!

Houston (as himself — you don't mess with perfection)-Yeah I want some help too!

Fred F. - Okay, you want it, you got it, plus everybody gets a raise. Just remember to vote for me for Grand Poobah next spring. (the rockfessors are ecstatic and break into "for he's a jolly good fellow".)

Barney - (frantically) But, Uh, Fred, Uh, there's no way we can do this.

Fred F. - Don't fear Barney, where there is hope, there is a chance that everything will work out. If we all stick together we can make it work. (while I'm inspired) Have faith Barney old buddy, old pal, old friend of mine.

Wilma - (rushing in ecstatically) - Fred, Fred we were just chosen as the chisel representatives to the SAT's, we finally got rid of all our chisels, we're rich, we're rich, we're rich!

Fred F. - See Barney, what did I tell you? (Fred leaves and clicks his heels) Yabba Dabba Doo!!!!

SHOP Richard Merullo

Dear Faculty,

To conclude this section of the yearbook, the class of 1987 would like to thank you. Without your patience, caring, determination, and devotion, we would not be where we are today. We have learned through your teaching how to overcome problems and work on weaknesses while emphasizing our strengths.

We feel privileged to have known and learned from such a dedicated group. We hope that you continue to use your talents to better the future of I.H.S. and its students. You have given us the greatest gift, the gift of knowledge; with this gift, we will succeed.

Sincerely,

The Class of 1987

UNDERCLASSMEN

Ode to Average Joe

How are you, average Joe,
How's your life, how does it go?
Without a car, probably slow,
So goes the life of average Joe.

How are you, Miss plain Jane,
Are younger boys all the same?
It's upperclassmen that lead to fame,
So goes the life of Miss plain Jane.

How does it feel to be a freshman?
New school, new books, a struggle again,
Was it a drag, was it fun, I guess it all depends,
So goes the life of a freshman.

How does it feel to be a sophomore,
Girls - Do the guys look anymore?
Guys - Is it easier to score?
So goes the life of a sophomore.

Juniors you're finally the head of the class,
Three years, were they slow or fast?
Weren't SAT's really a blast?
Here you are seniors at last.

Underclassmen you're a vital cog, yes, scary but true,
Take charge, be strong, stay true blue.
You've got to pull the high school through.

One piece of advice before we go,
Don't be lazy, don't be low.
Soon you'll be the star of the show.
Let somebody else be average Joe!

ACTIVITIES

Hey you! Yeah, you over there. Yeah, the person who looks bored, unsatisfied and disgruntled with his life; yeah you, come over here, I've got a deal for you.

First, I have to see if you qualify. Are you a male or female? Great. Question #2, are you currently a student at the Ipswich High School? Great. You qualify.

Now you're probably asking yourself, why is this insane man asking me these stupid questions? Well, insane is the word, because at these prices I must be insane. Yes, you have qualified to be a member in any of Ipswich High School's activities.

Yes, you and a friend can spend a week skiing in Austria, a week galavanting through the streets of England or a week sightseeing in the historic land of Russia. (Our gay Paris week was canceled due to uncontrollable circumstances).

Hey, you look like a creative dude, we've got the perfect thing for you: the yearbook, newspaper, The Company, the foreign language club, the list goes on and on. I get dizzy just thinking about it.

If you are in a more serious mood, we have (just for you)-student government. With absolutely no charge, you are eligible to run for any office. Be a mover and a shaker!

Wait, that's not all! There is also Peer Education. A place where you can learn and be a part of a special family.

If I left anything out it's due to my total insanity. I'm totally overwhelmed, and you will be too. Act first and get involved. This is a once in a life time offer.

PORTFOLIO

The Artist Lover

In the dim light
bled vibrant walls
of abstract perversity
Amidst the impasto, Strokes of violence
consumed him, bent by the immediate clarity
of his glasses.
His mouth sculptured,
face moist,
like a tightly wet
canvas;
with concentration
cast forever,
he said,
"I shall now paint a woman."

When I look inside
a lightbulb
I see a desperate woman trapped within a transparent asylum;
with her copper arms
of twisted wire
she reaches upward—
When the night falls
her body shivers
in anguish,
her passion bursts into imprisoned light —
and in frustration
she lives
her barrier life.

A purple haze falls over the bay
A lone motorboat tools along weaving disturbing
the resting sailboats;
a young man hollers,
"Whoah!"
"Hey!"
as summer slips through his fingers.

War

War is a mischievous child
That no one has the courage to scold,
But soon it grows too ominous
For one man's hold
And conscience.

Its power spreads like the tide ascends, Creeping slowly, taking land, then suddenly—Flooding.

War feeds and flourishes on fear, hate,
And love.
Its ghastly mouth swallows men, digesting
their emotions,
Then spitting back their lifeless bodies.

War is all men's enemy.
It lies, cheats, and steals.
And despite efforts to kill its ruthless heart,
No one can.
It lasts forever, lingering in the minds of men.

I look into the mirror
But I see to my surprise,
A wholly different person
Looking deep into my eyes.
The carefree little girl I saw
When I was four or five,
Has now become a young woman
Fighting to survive.
It's really sort of scary
That time has gone so fast
For what then I called "present"
Has now become the "past."
I look into the mirror
And the face looking back at me
Is that of a young lady
Where a little girl used to be.

SPORTS

Sports are as vital to a high school as books. New ground is not being broken by pointing out that being physically fit is just as important as staying mentally fit. The two work together to form a bond that makes up solid physical health. But the importance of sports in a small school like Ipswich goes a little deeper.

Ipswich is one of the smaller schools, population wise, in the Cape Ann League, but the ratio of students who play sports is very high. Why do so many kids play sports? What makes it all worth while? In a small Division III school the chance of an athlete recieving a scholarship is very small; it happens, but rarely.

The main reason students play sports is the satisfaction of winning. They like to see their names in print, and the glory of it all can be consuming. However, winning isn't everything, (corny, but true).

For example, say that a team goes undefeated, makes the state tournament and goes on to win the state championship. That is the ultimate for any high school team: to be the best. Sometimes, however, something is missing.

At Ipswich we have that missing element. People care about each other. The feeling of togetherness not only helps unite a team, but also helps the school and the community pull closer. A great example of this feeling of unity is when the football team cheered on the soccer team and meant it. A gap between fields that were miles apart was spanned.

The epitome of high school sports is bonding a school together whether the result is winning or not. At Ipswich we have accomplished this. The sweetest thing to support this theory is the fact that . . . we win.

RETROSPECTIVE

Goodbye '87

All the years,
have seemed to wash away
in my tears,
I'll smile and remember the joy I live today.

I have seen,
a thousand eyes stare in my face,
a pleasant dream,
how will it be replaced?

All my friends,
will soon part and go their separate ways,
but to the end,
I'll smile and remember our special days.

But time,
you can't buy time anymore,
just say goodbye time I'll be missin' you,
as I walk through life's door.

And if we ever meet again,
bump together on a street,
I'll grab your hand and say, hey friend, weren't those times way back really sweet.

We've turned the page,
we know our left from our right,
we now hold the stage,
our destiny is now in our sight.

And if we ever talk again,
reminisce about the past,
I'll look in your eyes and say hey friend,
don't you wish those times could last.

Buy time,
you can't buy time anymore,
just say goodbye time I'll be missin' you,
as I walk through life's door.

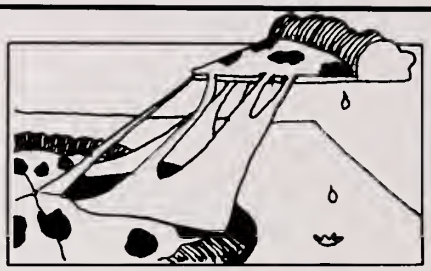
POPULARITY POLL 1987

The ultimate car, according to the class of 1987, is none other than the Porsche. Other top vote-getters include: Ferrari, Camaro, and Lambourghini. Most unusual were: the bus, Blue Magoo, and an M-GOA1 Main Battle Tank.

Favorite Car



PIZZA!! Everyone loves pizza, but that's not all we love to eat! Runner-up was Chinese. Sushi, nachos and shrimp cocktail recieved honorable mentions. Some rather distinctive choices were: lobster and French onion soup. Some rather bizarre choices were tuna with ketchup, smoked oysters, and . . . school lunch?

Favorite Food

Pavillion is the favorite "hangout" by far. Runner up was Crane's Beach, then a certain "Rad Pad" made its mark. Markos's Pit and The Cave also were represented. "Home" was also mentioned.

Favorite Hangout

Sting took this category with a boost from his solo album, "The Dream of the Blue Turtles," and his current release with The Police. Others in the top ten were as follows: Bryan Adams, Phil Collins, Bono, Stevie Wonder, Billy Idol and the mysteroius Peter Gabriel. David Bowie is still a top vote-getter as it . . . Elvis! The mellow students put Al Jarreau and Cat Stevens in print.

Favorite Male Singer

You've got one guess in this category-yes, it's the one and only: Madonna. She dazzles from "Borderline" to "True Blue" and keeps everyone dancing no matter what! More than one female vocalist recieved votes in our poll; some other include: Whitney Housten, Belinda Carlisle, wacky Cyndi Lauper, Allison Moyet, Tina Turner, Pat Benatar, Sade, and Annie Lennox.

Favorite Female Singer

The winner here must be censored due to alchoholic content. Runner-up, however, need not be edited-Diet Coke is as all-American as you can get these days. The few printable entries in this category were: milk, 7UP, apple juice, iced-tea, and Kool-Aid.

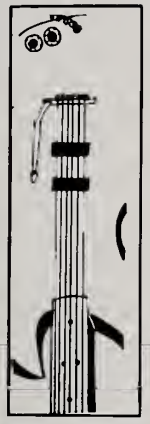
Favorite Drink

Stand By Me took second place in this category and two "oldies but goodies"- Scarface and The Blues Brothers came in third. The absolute favorite, however, was Top Gun . . . by miles and miles of airspace. The summer films-The Fly, Aliens, and Ferris Bueller's Day Off also recieved rave reviews from the class of 1987. On a more serious note, our more intellectual students agreed that Out Of Africa, Witness, and The Color Purple were the best. The Rocky Horror Picture Show experience also made "the list." Strange to say, however, that no Rambo or Rocky films recieved as much as one vote-sorry Sylvester!

Favorite Movie

Sometimes the programming on TV can leave a little to be desired . . . sometimes it leaves a lot. The class of 1987 watches only the best. Namely The Cosby Show. The other prime time favorites include: Moonlighting, (second place), Family Ties, Cheers, Night Court, (love those Thursday nights), MacGyver, The Facts Of Life, and Dynasty, (I guess we've outgrown good, old GH). For the more frivolous, we've got the Flinstones, and for the more adolescent . . . Sesame Street? For the slightly off the wall- Monty Python. Happy Prime Time Viewing!

Favorite TV Show



There's nothing like the sound of a favorite group to bring back memories by the myriad, (that's an SAT word!). The top three in this category certainly do that; they are: Van Halen, U2, and Pink Floyd. The rest of the candidates in our poll ranged from AC/DC to Run DMC and included: The Violent Femmes, Journey, The Beatles, Squeeze, INXS, New Man, The Police, The Cure and the Beach Boys. Yes, Led Zep was also in there.

Favorite Group

Meryl Streep has become almost a synonym for the word "actress." A classic woman as well as actress, she truly deserves this position. Her peers, old and new, have also been chosen by the seniors as worthy of mention. Cybill Shepherd was chosen number two for her role in Moonlighting, and Demi Moore was voted number three for her numerous movies roles.

Favorite Actress

The hunks have it! Number one goes to the top gun, Tom Cruise, who stole hearts in Risky Business, All The Right Moves, and most recently, Top Gun, (the number one movie of '87). Number two and three were Michael J. Fox and Rob Lowe, respectively. The "older men" in the acting world recieved their votes-Jack Nicholson and Clint Eastwood would not be left out.

Favorite Actor

With appearances in two of this summer's best movies, "Twist and Shout" was voted the favorite song. "Stairway to Heaven" was tied with Lisa Lisa's "All Cried Out" for second place- a rather odd combination for top three. A few others were: "In the Name of Love", "Shock the Monkey", "I Drink Alone",and "Black Coffee in Bed."

Favorite Song

Looking for the perfect comeback? Here are some of the best, according to the class of 1987: "We're Golden", "Whatever turns you on", "Party", "Can't deal with it", "I'll rip your heart out," (for those of you who like to get right to the point), "Get a clue," "For God's sake," "Frodo lives," "It's casual," "That's cool", (or coo-elle), and (of course), the favorite of all sayings-"Get a life." Now you'll never be at a loss for words.

Favorite Saying

Let's face it, any saying can be worn through with time. Here are the cream of the crop of bad sayings. At the top of the list: "You're bumming". The four runners up are as follows: "whassup?", "Hey hon", "Dur," and, "Happnin'." Other winning phrases included: "Do it", "Like-wow", "Same difference", "Yay", "Oh my head", "Gag me with a spoon", "totally!", ("Valley" went out so long ago!) and, of course: "Wicked Awesome!"

Least Favorite Saying

Guys, you'll be happy to know that you have been voted the "favorite thing." (Girls, how cliche!). The three runners up were: parties, Sugarloaf '86, and money. The class of 1987 also enjoys rock concerts and boating, not to mention dancing. Other favorite things of the class of 1987 include: the Tazmanian Devil, Ipswich, graduating, blondes, the brat pack, the movies, rock 'n' roll, and (of course), weekends. Another favorite is the one and only - romance (sigh).

The Reasons For Existence

There are some things you can just do without. For example, rap songs on the radio, homework on Fridays, cafeteria food, college applications, Ipswich, school, popularity, cold winters. Joan Collins and her glitzy wardrobe, avacados, graduating, not graduating. Mondays, the clientele at Fantasy's, rain on weekends, getting caught, having to work on Friday nights, SAT's, and (last but not least), Mr. T.

Mom and Dad

Thank you Scott, for making us proud to be your parents. You're the greatest.

Love

Mom and Gunny

Dear Peter, We are very proud of your high achievement, and we wish you the very best in the years ahead.
EUGENE and MARIA RADZIM

Dear T, We started to write about how proud you make us, but it sounded real mushy. Then we thought something profound would be appropriate, but we were out of tea bags. So we will use this space for a serious message, in case we don't get a chance to discuss this important subject before you graduate. You will surely find, after the essays and interviews and applications are done, and Spot and Fang are all caught up, the social scene has settled down, the last set is struck the final final is finished, and your last Transcript has gone to press, that we all know you will go on to do great things, starting with cleaning your room. With love from all of us, S.

Beth,
Reputations are made by searching for things that can't be done and doing them. Don't worry about failure. Worry about the chances you miss when you don't even try. We're proud of you!
Love Dad and Jane

Laura, Congratulations
We wish you happiness and success for now and always and to Peggy, Katie, Nicole, Amy, and Judge too!
Love Mom and Dad

Kerry, Congratulations! You've made us so proud. May your future hold all that you are hoping for.
Love Joan and John Marden

Jessica, Congratulations; to you and your classmates. We are very proud of you.
Love, Mom, Dad, Mindy and John.

WITH LOVE, MOM AND DAD . . .

Jill
Well, here it is; the "real world" you've spoken of with such enthusiasm. Don't lose that enthusiasm, and you'll do great. We will love and support you all the way.
Love,

Dearest Kimberlee,
We wish you and all your classmates all the success in the world. Kim, You're a beautiful daughter, and we love you dearly and "it's a good thing you're cute."

SENIORS AT WORK

Yes boys and girls . . . it's that time again! Hold on tight because here we go on our wonderful working world tour of Ipswich. Yes boys and girls, this is when we learn where all of the really good children spend their time earning money for their grandparents' retirement fund. Let's begin with C-A-P-E-A-N-N. That's right, Cape Ann Market. Can you say "Cape Ann is fun on Wednesday nights"? I know you can. Let's step inside. Come on!

Oh Mary Poppins! It's Chris A., Katrina, and Melissa! See them ring up the items! No? Look closer. Aren't they good? Well Jimminy Cricket! Here comes Chris O.! Now boys and girls, can you name Mickey's friend? That's right, Goofy. Aren't we perceptive? Oh! RUN, boys and girls! Here come Shannon and Gail O. to throw us out! Oh Dear!

Look there's Denise and Faith! No, boys and girls, don't take candy from those girls! Aren't we smart!

Okay children, Let's explore the 5 and 10. Gee, look at the smiling sales girl! Can you read her tag? K-I-M. That's Right! Why hello Kim, who is your frowning co-worker? Can you say Hello Laura, children?

Oh goodness children, I have a swell idea! Let's go to Brooks! We can buy candy for our mothers! Won't they drop dead, boys and girls? Can you say drop dead? Why, there's Kim Janvrin! Oh No Kim, we weren't talking to you! Aren't we scared!

Spercalifragilisticexpialidoshus! Let's visit with our friend Laurel. She works in Woolworths! Maybe we'll have lunch there!

Speaking of gas, our yellow school bus is almost empty! Whatever shall we do? We could go to John at Mobil. Okay, hold on to you lunch money tight, children. Oh HEAVENS! Can you read the sign in the window, boys and girls? That's right, it says "Closed due to bomb scare".

Perhaps Gail M. can aid us in our peril. But look she's being held up. Aren't we lucky that we didn't stop. Can you yell Hurrah?

OH, THANK MY AUNT GERTRUDE! It's that nice boy Chris M. at Exxon. He'll start us up for sure!

Well, boys and girls, our tour is almost ended! Let's say a final hello to Rachael at the bakery. Hello, To Rachael! Aren't we hungry!

Special Thanks

Mrs. King for bringing the food to our meetings and always smiling no matter what. Tom Keeley for everything! (Doing this without you would have been like going to the dentist without novicaine) Mr. Fortado for his patience in dealing with our forty photo sessions. Mr. McKenzie for the frequent use of his phone to call Mark Lawrence and ask, "where's the photographer?"

Guertner's 1640 House

Pay attention, you may learn something during your meal.

From the wood carvings in the beams to the quaint fireplaces throughout the house, Guertner's 1640 House reflects generations of growth and change. You will enjoy a superbly prepared meal in the original surroundings of Thomas Hart's colonial dwelling. Whether it be at Sunday brunch or at dinner, we will satisfy your appetite for knowledge and history as well as victuals.

Reservations accepted. Dinner/Sunday Brunch. 51 Linebrook Rd., Ipswich, MA 356 4711

I ATE IT JUST THE SAME: EXPERIENCES AT IPSWICH HIGH

I muddled down the hallway, tired, as usual. The voices were in my ears, their colors bombarded my eyes. You-Are-Here, Ipswich High.

WELCOME!!!

I went to my class, familiar, yet nameless faces file to their seats, yapping to each other. We're pretty much happy students here at Ipswich. That's good. The teacher walked in and it began, another extension of our collective consciousness. Five days a week, nine months a year. Every class seems to have its own distinctive personality, depending, of course, upon the degree of alienation between teacher and student. You either relate or you don't. Simple. It tends to affect the whole course. Ah well, it makes no difference to me, time is mud. So the day trickled on and it was finally time for lunch. "Good," I thought, "food . . . no tension."

Cafeteria lunch periods can be real intriguing places. There are four of them here at Ipswich. All are unique. The cafeteria becomes, suddenly, a scale model of the student body as a whole. With each class and culture represented, we act like seperate cells in a single writhing organism. I love it.

The big doors yawned open and we responded with a stampede. By sixth period, you can get real hungry and I joined them in the ol' push and shove. The food assembled by our new cafeteria staff looked vaguely disturbing to me, but nevermind, I ate it just the same.

Soon enough, the bell rang and lunch was over. We filed out of the cafeteria leaving it in a total mess. discarded ice cream wrappers were everywhere, milk cartons, cellophane bags and protoplasmic slime. And what did we care? We do have janitors after all.

The first thing a foreign student notices about our school is it's size. ("My Gawd! Our GYM'S 4 times as big as this one!") It's tiny and poorly designed; but that's okay, it's what makes us unique. We may not like each other but certainly, we at least know each other. It's one big family like it or not. Our's is the school that looks like it was drawn up on the back of a coffee napkin. Our's is the school with T.V. commercials on the walls, the only one like it around. We have an identity all to our own. From one end of the spectrum to the other, We-Are-Here.

The last two periods eased by and presently, the day had ended. I was one step closer to graduation. "How strange," I thought "Graduation from this place!" The overwhelming presence in my life for the past four years, soon to come to an end, like the day itself. The mechanics of life.

Some students have grown to resent this school and the people in it and I suppose that's understandable. But not me, for better or for worst, our school has been an experience for me and that's what it's all about, experience! (You dig it, man?")

I'll never forget Ipswich High, how could I?
